The SOUTH-CAROLINA Gazette.

JERSEY, Sept. 17.

THE Charming Nancy privateer, Capt. Winter, is arrived here with ſeveral prizes, laden with claret, oil, flour, wool, and guns; alſo a ſhip bound to Rochfort, laden with timber for two French men of war that had loſt their maſts: They chaſed a man of war off Breſt aſhore, but were forced to leave her on account of the batteries; the privateer has ſince ſailed in company with 8 ſail of the line and two frigates, to intercept the Martinico men, with their convoy, who were ſeen 2 days ago.

Portſmouth, Sept. 22. Arrived at Spithead the Royal Sovereign, Eſſex, and Severn men of war, with ſeven prizes from the fleet. They report that admiral Harriſon in the Monmouth, with the Chicheſter and Swiftſure, was in chace of 3 French men of war.

Chatham, Sept. 24. The Union, a moſt extraordinary fine ſecond rate, will be launched to-morrow; and ſome ſay that admiral Knowles will go to ſea in her.

London, Sept. 25. They write from Paris, that an army of 24,000 men, commanded by the prince de Soubiſe, are to paſs the Rhine without delay to the relief of the empreſs queen; and that another army of twice that force will enter into the Low Countries, and in conjunction with 20,000 Auſtrians, invade the king of Pruſſia's dominions on that ſide, and beſiege Weſel.

A letter from Francfort, dated the 15th inſt. ſays, that the Pruſſians have formed a camp of obſervation, compoſed of 23,000 men, in the neighbourhood of Nuremberg. It is added in a poſtſcript that his Poliſh majeſty has conſented to a treaty of neutrality, and by the mediation of a certain power will give the king of Pruſſia the ſecurity that he demands for the performance of that treaty, in order to ſave his ſubjects from thoſe miſeries to which they muſt be otherwiſe expoſed.

Admiral Byng has received orders to prepare for his trial, which, we are told, ſtands fixed for ſome time next month, the arrival of his witneſſes being now every day expected. Upon the delivery of this meſſage to him, we are informed, that he requeſted a longer time, and the liberty of ſending for more witneſſes; but all farther indulgencies of this kind have been denied.

London, Sept. 28. We hear that a Pruſſian ſhip has been ſtopt at Oſtend, and that the Engliſh ſhips there were expected to be detained likewiſe.

This day arrived a mail from the Groyne, by which it is ſaid letters are come, that give an account of ſir Edward Hawke's having taken 70 French tartans laden with proviſions for Minorca.

Dublin, October 1. Letters from London by this day's mail mention an engagement between the forces of the king of Pruſſia, and the Imperial army, in which his Pruſſian majeſty is ſaid to have loſt 5,000 men, and the Imperialiſts 7,000, beſides a great number of priſoners.

An ELEGY

On the much lamented Loſs of Col. Hyrne's Lady.

FAIR Carolina, now doth much lament
One of her jewels, is from her boſom rent
She cannot chuſe, but ſhew a kind concern
For the loſs of that good lady, madam Hyrne
For cruel death, that king of terrors great
His coming is, inevitable fate
All muſt ſubmit, unto his fatal dart
And with it, he did pierce her tender heart
Her loving ſpouſe, her abſence much doth mourn
For he can never, look for her return
Her dear ideas, now muſt fill his arms
For ſhe is fled, with her delightful charms
Her tender mother, and good relations grieve
For ſuch a loſs, they never can retrieve
Her little ones, has loſt their mother dear
That would have rais'd them, in God's love and fear
All her poor neighbours, wants ſhe did ſupply
In her converſation, moſt did edify
The loſs is great, to thoſe that lived near
They can't forbear, to ſhed a friendly tear
Tho' death doth ſeem, all nature's chiefeſt foe
But yet we hope, ſhe has not found him ſo
God's meſſenger, hath caus'd her to remove
To join her eſſence, with the bleſs'd above
No earth'ly joys, can e'er come up to this
The full fruition, of eternal bliſs
To endleſs ages, there for to remain
In the higheſt heav'ns, where Chriſt himſelf doth reign.

CHARLES-TOWN, December 16.

By a Veſſel which arrived here laſt Sunday in 26 days from Jamaica, we learn, that upon certain Advices received there, it had been thought proper to proclaim Martial Law in that Iſland, and that the Inhabitants had then already been Ten Days under Arms: That Admiral Townſhend's whole Squadron, conſiſting of 3 Ships of the Line, and 4 20-Gun Ships were out upon a Cruize in the Windward-Paſſage: That, for near a Twelve Month paſt, great Military Preparations were made at Hiſpaniola, for ſome Expedition: And that many Veſſels, full of Troops and warlike Stores, have lately been ſent from Cape François to Miſſiſippi, &c. the Deſtination whereof we are left to conjecture.

'Tis ſaid, that Hints have been tranſmitted hither from different Quarters, of an intended Attack upon this Province and Georgia the enſuing Spring; and that the Preparations at Cape-François have not been made merely to give an Alarm. On the other Hand, 'tis confidently aſſerted, that 1500 or 2,000 Troops are marched from the Northward for this Province, and that two Companies of them are already arrived at the Congaree's.

We are informed, that a Subſcription was in great Forwardneſs at George-Town, for fitting out a Privateer there, before the Subſcription was ſet on Foot here.

The Report of a late Action at Lake George is contradicted.

The Brigt. Siſters, Jacob Whitewood Maſter, from this Port (laſt from Figuera) for Poole, was taken by the French, and carried into St. Sebaſtian's.

The French Ships taken by His Majeſty's Sloop Jamaica before the Declaration of War, and brought in here, are not condemned as was ſaid in our laſt: There was only Leave given for ſelling the periſhable Cargoes they had on board.
